Wallihan wants to be a millionaire

Who wants to be a millionaire? Apparently, IUSM student Becky Wallihan found the thought appealing. Wallihan was a contestant on the television show by the same name July 17 and walked away with $64,000.

Wallihan was a first-year medical student last year but took the second semester off for an internship with Eli Lilly. She will return to medical school in October.

Her guest on the show was her boyfriend, John Pieper, who does payroll and purchasing for the IU Department of Biochemistry and Molecular Biology.

Wallihan answered 11 questions correctly but opted not to risk her winnings by answering a question about the name of the novel that takes place in the fictional setting of Interzone. The correct answer was "Naked Lunch."

An Indianapolis native, Wallihan attended IU-Bloomington where she was a Wells Scholar and made the Academic All-Big Ten tennis team three consecutive seasons while majoring in biochemistry and physics.
